100% Certified Quality

Cutting, Launching and Assembling

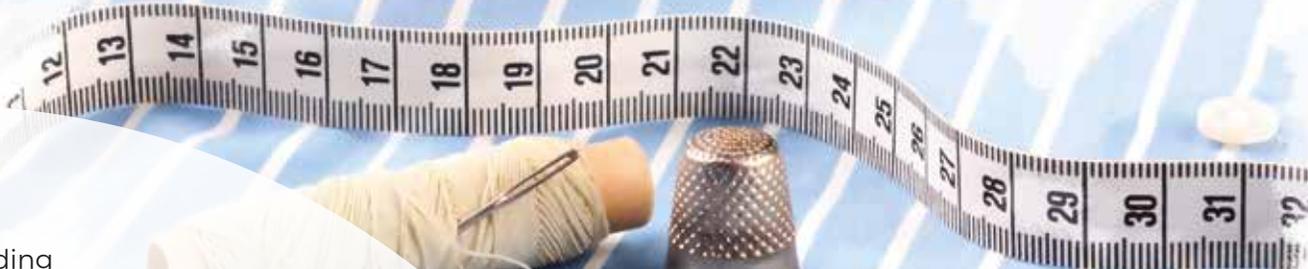

In the first three stages of elaboration we count on a quality responsible whose function is to make sure that all the stages are correctly developed, discarding the units that do not fulfill the established specifications (straight stitching, stripes and squares fitting, the stitch's size, the distance between buttons, length, etc.).

Final shirt

In the fourth stage we check the shirt again and we retouch the finishing (excess threads, labels, etc). We mark the shirt with a sticker showing that the garment is in accordance with the requested specifications. After that we continue with the folding stage.

Presentation

After the folding stage, we pack the shirt and we check that the final presentation complies with the client's request. In short, there is an individual and exhaustive control over the production of our shirts.

Aenor certificated on the 10th March 2004 that the system of Management and Quality for the production complies with the UNE-EN ISO 9001 2000.
